

January 09, 2026: On Factually Recording the Loud Vehicles that Speed Past Our House as I Read the News

The USA spying apparatus is attempting to use its spying powers to dissuade me from even reading or following the national and international news at this point - inside of my own home.

I am reporting and recording that as I open each and every national and international news article this morning, loud vehicles speed past the front of our home to coincide with my computer's work in loading the pages, saving the pages, and even attempts to 'sound a commentary' on whether the content of the news articles is favorable or unfavorable to Donald Trump himself.

Upon leaving the national and international news sources, and moving to the local news, the vehicle sounds stopped immediately and I was able to read the news in peace (until this very moment when I recorded this fact - where another vehicle drove by to accentuate that my computer work is continuously monitored by a force that feels the desire and freedom to 'drive' sound agitations into my home in response to a myriad of stimuli).

Again and again, I am continuing to record that the Trump administration has taken their criminal activities and 'driven them' directly into our homes - simply because they can and do choose to cause us harm with their ability to break the law for their own benefit.

Truly, his team operates as if breaking the law while leading the government is some sort of criminal mastermind operation that they themselves have succeeded at accomplishing. There is a great pride being shown to me in their ability and willingness to overstep all boundaries that exist for the decency of society.

In reality, the government existentially can do anything it wants to its people - following the law or not. Once the people within the government have abandoned morality to this decree, it is proper to conclude that the government has fallen.

Donald Trump was the official end of America - what we are living under now is not 'American' or anything close.

We are currently living under a spy state enabled by an obsessive-compulsive sadist.
